Red River

Cords are out – employees, customers, contractors, vendors and guests all expect wireless access. And because most people work from both company-supplied and personal devices, wireless network access must become ubiquitous to accommodate the new mobile workplace. Laptops, tablets, smart phones, wearables, building control systems: All devices with little to no traditional IT oversight, all with their own security threats, yet all wanting to connect to your wireless network.

The expectations placed on wireless LAN infrastructures call for solutions that are capable of providing the coverage, capacity, mobility, security and redundancy to keep your organization functioning at maximum capacity – at all times.

Red River's certified team of wireless experts can help you expand your capabilities without burdening your resources or increasing your security risk. With Red River, you get a truly end-to-end solution, from design and hardware installation to ongoing maintenance and support.

DESIGNED TO MAXIMIZE VALUE

Whether you're looking to expand your existing wireless network or create a new one, our experienced team of wireless networking engineers can plan, design and implement a wireless solution to meet your needs. With any approach, we help you reap the benefits of a fast and reliable network:

- Security protocols designed around your specific requirements
- Improve integration and collaboration across your entire network
- Maintain flexibility to meet constantly changing demands
- Enhance your network's performance
- Improve the reliability, security and resiliency of your network

- Deliver secure mobile access to business applications
- Reduce operational costs
- Improve operational efficiency and network management
- Minimize disruptions

Red River has strong partnerships with a wide array of OEM providers, and we take a vendor-neutral approach to our design. That means you always get unbiased recommendations for hardware and software that meets your specific objectives, budget and requirements.

GET MORE FROM YOUR WIRELESS

Red River has the proven expertise to help you:

Optimize Performance and Protection:

Our experts start with a complete Wireless Site Survey, oversee testing and turn-up, and provide hands-on support to enable the highest levels of wireless network performance and protection – without interfering with current wireless systems or day-to-day operations.

Support a Wide Range of IoT Devices: Easily support systems that are not compliant to current enterprise security standards, but require a protected, interactive, responsive and resilient network infrastructure.

Maintain Compliance: We work with highly regulated industries and government agencies to meet the most stringent security, information assurance and compliance requirements, including FIPS, FISMA, HSPD-12, HIPAA, and 802.11 wireless standards.

Simplify Maintenance: Proactive monitoring, maintenance and management from our 24/7/365 Network Operations Center to keep your wireless network running smoothly.
